SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1863.

Combat of Flores and Medina.

As all parties are on the tip-toe of expectation, pending the grand and decisive battle which is to form the last scene of the Oriental drama, it may be amusing to calculate the various issues, which promise an almost equally probable result.

Flores, with 2,000 "libertadores," is at San Gregorio; Medina's army nearly double in number, is watching his movements, only a very short distance intervening between the hostile lines. It is erroneous to suppose that either general wishes to outflank the Government forces and throw himself between them and the city of Montevideo. It is rather to surprise Medina, or engage him at a disadvantage, whereby he may throw this reserve army into confusion; for it would be a fatal error to make a descent upon the capital, leaving so formidable a force on his rear. At the same time, Flores knows that his halt in front of the Cerro' army, and so near the city, will tell in his favor: Medina shows no anxiety to attack him, the "colorados" jump to the conclusion that his strength and confidence by the circumstance, several of the Government troops pass over to him, and he holds a commanding position from which readily to take immediate advantage of any attempt at rebellion within the city or passing confederados in Medina's camp. Nor is this all: there is now no force on the North to cause him uneasiness, he is virtually master of all the territory beyond San Gregorio, except the north of Uruguay, he is in a position to receive reinforcements safely from Buenos Ayres or the Brazilian frontier, and every day lost by Government weakens the popularity of Pres. Berro, and brings fresh adventurers to the rebel lines. It is therefore his object to remain passive until absolutely obliged to cast his fortunes on the hazard of a fight.

Medina, notwithstanding his boasted victory at Polanco, has a wholesome respect for his adversary. According to Napoleon's well-known dictum, he will not engage in a struggle of strength without numbers are far less important than morale, and though both armies are of the same nationality, Flores' followers fight better. Medina has right on his side, but this weighs little at the lance's point, and since the battle of Las Piedras we have never seen an instance of Heaven lending timely help to the cause of righteousness. Medina knows that the destinies of the Blanco party rest upon his sword, but he also knows that Flores is a better tactician; he sees that it is necessary for at least a strike a final blow, yet fears for the fidelity of his troops in the hour of trial.

If Medina attack Flores, it is likely the latter will accept battle, taking care to choose such ground as his cavalry can manœuvre on, for a great portion of Medina's army is composed of infantry, whose services are comparatively inferior in a long running fight, and who might be hemmed in if their cavalry were scattered. Should Flores be worsted, we shall have a repetition of the Polanco retreat, for we can scarcely hope the rebels will be annihilated. Should Medina meet with a reverse, the rebel general will avail himself of the confusion to march on the city; but even then it is doubtful the issue would be decisive. If Medina succeed in reaching Montevideo, the garrison would be more than sufficient to defend the batteries if he be even cut off, the rebels must dismount half their force, leaving a body of observation at La Piedras with their horses and baggage.

We sum up the chances thus: in favour of an immediate and great battle, 6 to 1; in case of such event, relative chances of victory and defeat, 3 to 2. In case Flores be beaten, hope of ending the war, 1 to 6. In event of Medina being routed, his retreat into Montevideo is as 6 to 1. In case Flores be beaten and then attack the city, the odds against him are 2 to 1. If neither he routes and cut off, the chances for Flores entering Montevideo are 6 to 1. Inasmuch, then, the probability of a reactionary revolution are 6 to 3. In case Flores assume power, the chance of Baron Mauá getting mad is 9 to 1.

Argento-Brazilian Railway.

The London scientific gentlemen, recently employed in making surveys of the intended line from Concordia to Restauration have returned to this city, having happily concluded their labours. They describe their expedition as one of extreme pleasure, since they were everywhere received with the utmost kindness, and even rejoicing, by the inhabitants and local authorities. They travelled, of course, on horseback, making equestrian journeys of which they had not even formed an idea in Europe. But "accidents will happen," if they were unlucky enough on one occasion to encamp for the night without, perchance, finding their horses. Next morning, instead of finding the animals grazing, they were surprised to learn that the horses had returned without them to the Estancia some forty leagues off. In the intervals of labour they had first rate shooting, and at night were entertained with balls given by the pot latte burgesses who hailed them as friends of progress. Entre Rios and Corrientes vied in this respect, and at Mercedes and Curuzu-Cuatia, in the latter province, the festivities lasted three days.

The unrivalled advantages of the enterprise are manifest. The obstacles to navigation in the Upper Uruguay will be remedied; ready and cheap transit for the produce of the frontier-provinces of Brazil, as also for the yerba, &c., to Misiones (Corrientes) will be provided; the two nations will be brought into more immediate contact, and the trade of the commerce of Salto will be transferred to Entre Rios ports, while even the river ports of Banda Oriental will participate in the benefit. Even the Republic of Uruguay will be the gainer, for the chief friend of the enterprise, we understand, is of Uruguayan birth, and it is remarkable that the poor peasants of Entre Rios attach more importance to the projected line, than do the enlightened and patriotic journalists of B. Ayres. While our colleagues are debating about the "sacrifice of the people, energy, rights of siege, and all that is termed 'this political,' we embrace the opportunity of congratulating them on the fact of Argentine industry, to use our own friends, the apostles of progress. We rejoice that they leave for England, on this attempt more important than SANTA CATALINA. There is nowena going on at this chapel of ours (Plaza Constitucion), which is largely attended by the neighbors. In most of the other churches the Month o Mary is continued, nightly, with gres devotion and taste.

VILLA MERCEDES. Among th numerous addresses recently made b this important camp town, we call the attention to the English school opene by Mr. H. Bird on Nov. 1st. Th gentleman is well and favorably know as having been connected with the principal English Seminaries of Buenos Ayres.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Thurs day morning the 10.39 train killed a old lady at the corner of the Parque She was well-dressed, and aged about sixty, but has not been identified Luckily, such misfortunes are rar among us, but the W. Railway need such an 'elbow' at the Parque, that the train cannot be driven too slowly a that point. No one is blamed in this instance.

FORGED CURRENCY.—A gen tleman named Olabara, whose he raldry and antecedents Punch has no yet sounded, is on trial for despositing our paper-dollar by spurious institutions The Bank has not taken the trouble to notify the public on the matter, but this was probably with a view not to harass our feelings or disturb generc confidence.

CARDINAL WISEMAN ON SELF-CULTURE.

(The Times Sept. 17.)

The great hall of the Hartley Institution was last night densely crowded, Cardinal Wiseman having undertaken to give an address on the subject of self-culture. Mr. J. R. Stebbing, the president of the institution, occupied the chair, and in a brief address introduced his Eminence, who was received with great cordiality.

Cardinal Wiseman, when the cheering subsided, commenced his address, the delivery of which occupied upwards of two hours, during the whole of which time he was listened to with the great est attention. He said he had selected his subject of self-culture as one most briefly in unison with the object for which the Institution was founded,—to enable those who joined such a noble foundation to acquire learning for themselves, to form their own minds, and to improve those faculties which they individually possessed. The mechanic and man of his address would be not to excite ambition or the aim at distinction, not to stimulate extraordinary energies to induce men whom Providence had placed in a humble sphere of life to make their way from it, and rise higher and higher, perhaps with a fruitless aim constantly held before them. He was not about to show how individuals had risen from even the lowest ranks of society by industry, perseverance, honesty, and self-reliance to the very highest dignities. That was not his aim, for this reason—there was not one in ten thousand who could realize it, who could in so high a mark; and for one who did succeed there were hundreds and thousands where ambition had been over-excited, and whose hopes had been broken in early youth in attempting to arrive at that for which they were never destined, and there were others who had consumed a long day in murmuring impatience and discontented with themselves and others, because they thought they had been placed with unjustly by society in not having achieved their mission object. No; he wished to make every one feel that it was in his power to make such a position in society as would make him honoured, respected, revered by all around him, and respected by himself—by whom a man may work through a long life without being raised a step in that social position in which his talents and yet hold up his head among the noblest and the best, not as supercilious pride, but in ever-burning ambition, but in the consciousness that his honest labours were true to its duties, that his conduct has been unblemished—so that he might walk with his head erect, except in those moments when it must be bowed down before that higher and better Power which has given him those gifts which he has unfaithfully activated. He felt it due to himself to say—and he was sure all present would agree with him—that if he excluded from his address those sublimer aims those noble motives, those stronger incentives to righteousness and to virtue which ought to influence man in the whole career, it was not because he undervalued them, or that he wished by silence to exclude them. (Hear.) The meeting was a scientific and social meeting, and while he reserved to himself the fulness of his own convictions, and his sense of the propriety of such thoughts being before all men, he was sure he should be censured for making what he considered a moral and perhaps a religious discourse. He had spoken of self-culture being the object of such institutions as the present. It was, in fact, the essence of all education. Education supposed to be given to a passive and unresisting object by any amount of external pressure that might be applied to it was a mere folly. A certain amount of information might be poured into the ears and understanding of a man, but he was not thereby educated. No one believed that the art of healing consisted in the application of mere external remedies. To the art of curing recognised the healing in the vital power. It existed in the constitution of the frame and the object of medicine was to bring forth those latent curative powers of nature which had not yet been given way. Although outward applications might assist indirectly the main object was to stimulate and assist those latent powers given by nature, and the cure, so to speak, wisely aided and seconded, was in ourselves.

ON CHANGE

November 21.

Provincial paper money again looked coming to-day. Notwithstanding the great demand for it to-day for the price of the country, the abundance of foreign coin, and the slight inquiry for ounces, paper money is weak, and can only be resuscitated by a blaze in the Bank patio. The paper dollars must be burned if they are to hold even their present value. Public confidence in ministerial compacts also requires the strict compliance with the law. The first price paid for patacones was 27 32, equal to 0.6 old quotation. They closed at the same figure. Total sales, 93,181, of 20,004 were for cash.

As there was no steamer from Montevideo to-day, we had nothing new of Flores—the Baron Mauá's letter was the subject of conversation. Every merchant in town sympathises with this capitalist, but many are of opinion that it would be better if he would not consent to notice the slanderous effusions of the Tribune correspondent, both in the phrase and on the Bolsa business looked rather dull. To-day rools kept coming in fast; in the morning Bank about 10.00 of new were added from 95 to 95, but at this latter figure very few sales were made, and farmers had a great difficulty to obtain cover. In the south places wools are coming in more freely, but prices are not so good as in the north one. Buyers complain greatly of the bad state or condition of several large lots of wool.

The Uruguay leaves to-morrow. She takes a mail, letters, and specie to be quoted in the post-office.

We understand that Messrs. Aguirre and Murga have concluded a contract with an English house of this city, for the introduction of some hundreds of Irish families; these purchasers of 50,000 sheep is a convincing proof of their determination to carry out their colonization scheme.

There are a good many bills of exchange offered for this packet, and some 250000 was passed to day at the same rates as yesterday, 50 pence farthings equal to 67.

We hear that the British barque Emma has been chartered, under pressure of circumstances, to load in port for Boston at 12 pats. for bales.

Very little wool as yet has gone into deposit, the majority of the farmers preferring to sell at any thing like a fair price rather than incur the expense of storing.

We learn with no small pleasure that the appearance of the cotton crop in portions of the province of Rios is very good, and that from some of the interior provinces we may expect a few hundred bales.

Strange to say, that notwithstanding the new duties on pine, it is actually cheaper now than previously; the reason we do not know, but the demand appears still more limited.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR SCHOOL,

CALLE LARGA DE BARRACAS.

Dor.—Mr. Pongerard, of the London University College.

This Establishment, which from its foundation has been patronised by the principal British families of Buenos Ayres, is an exact reproduction of an English School, where a sound commercial education is combined with the acquisition of the French and Spanish languages is imparted to the pupils, and based upon the same system as in all first class European institutions of the kind.

An ever-watchful and constant supervision, and a strict maintenance of order and propriety, are a sufficient guarantee that the morals and behaviour of the pupils are carefully attended to.

The different branches taught in the English Grammar School comprise the English, French and Spanish languages; History, Geography, Arithmetic, and Book-keeping in all its parts, Writing, and Religious Instruction.

Extra branches, such as Latin, Mathematics, German, Music and Drawing, are also taught by special masters.

The situation of the English Grammar School, in one of the most delightful Quintas of the Calle Larga de Barracas, at the very gates of the city, is one of the most healthful and picturesque of the environs of Buenos Ayres.

MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY OF THE DAY

The Sheep-Farmers and the Public in general.

F. C. Calvert's Phenyline Sheep Salve Therefore's Sheep Salve

The great reputation these articles have acquired in consequence of their extraordinary success in the Australian Colonies, has induced many Industrious Persons to imitate the name and interest of those articles. To establish a fraud upon the public is a felony. To establish a fraud upon a fellow countryman, loses my warm regard, not only in the description of the Sheep, but the frequently fatal pests, the two wholly antidotal; it has several advantages over all other Salves, it is not a Tar, Pitch, or Grease, but a Vegetable Oil, the following is a brief of the uses in which these medicines may be applied—In Sheep-Cuts (scabs), Lockjaw, Wounds, Bruises, Broken Colours in the feet, grease, fullfet, all Inflammations, and Sores of every description, and Foot-rot (internal and external) which it never fails to cure.

For wounds or broken members in the head and for all general Inflammatory purposes it is the sure remedy. Phenyline is found invaluable in cases on the Shoulder, in Spasms in the neck, and for rheumatic pains and for preventing flies, ticks and bugs from infesting the Sheep, and for the cure of Scab and Vermin in the Dog and Animals. Numerous testimonials from the principal Sheep-farmers in England who reported to the Colonies, the following is a brief of the uses in which these medicines may be applied—In Sheep-Cuts (scabs), Lockjaw, Wounds, Bruises, Broken Colours in the feet, grease, fullfet, all Inflammations, and Sores of every description, and Foot-rot (internal and external) which it never fails to cure.

SAVINGS BANK.

BANK MAUA & C°

— No. 103 calle de Cangallo. —

BUENOS-AYRES.

The immense advantages of Accounts Current are now so generally felt, and appreciated in the two great emporiums of the River Plate—Montevideo & Buenos Ayres—that there are very few Merchants who fail to keep one at the Bank in which they place the most confidence.

The Bank of Mauá & Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working class in that city, a safe & profitable depository for their savings.

The sums deposited in that most important institution are daily increasing and already reach a very large amount.

Those advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of Clerks, artisans, working-men & servants of all classes & conditions, who are equally interested in securing their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of need, sickness or old age, instead of spending them in the immoral gambling, in lotteries and other frivolities.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. of this city following the example of their firm in Montevideo now offer the same facilities in this city and will open on the 1st October a "Savings Bank" at No. 103 calle Cangallo from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. on week days, and on Sundays and holidays from 10 a. m. to 12 m. for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned.

The Bank will deliver to each depositor a Pass Book in which will be entered the amount deposited and withdrawn.

The depositor is permitted at any time to withdraw the whole or part of the sum deposited, in the former case the interest will be calculated up to date,

The Bank of Mauá and Co. is sufficiently known to the public by the benefit derived from the course of its operations which are regulated on the strictest and soundest principles and always directed to promote the general welfare.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. are also prepared to add that this new branch of their business will render immense service to the working classes of Buenos Ayres and its neighbourhood.

Buenos Ayres September 10th 1863.

p. p. Mauá & Co.
WILLIAM LESLIE.

CONDITIONS.

1st. The Bank receives at interest any sum from Twenty five dollars currency or one silver dollar upwards.

2nd. The interest allowed is six per cent [0 p$] per annum which is liquidated every six months

3rd. The depositor can at any time retire the whole or part of the money deposited.

4th. Once the amount deposited exceeds Twenty five thousand dollars currency or one thousand dollars silver the depositor if he wishes can open an account current according to the rules established by the Bank.

5th. In case the depositor loses his Pass Book it can be replaced by another on paying twelve dollars currency, and advertising the loss in the public newspapers.

In having been intimated to Messrs.
